Teenagers love to take risks. They love the adrenaline from diving off a bridge, driving too fast or skiing out of bounds.

Many teenagers are unaware that unintentional injuries are the leading cause of death for their age group.

This internationally acclaimed high energy show empowers youth to live life by making smart choices & taking smart risks.

"This program brought me back to reality. It proved to me that I am not invincible and that I should not cross my own stupid line."
Student, Age 14

"The best program I have ever seen. It should be seen by every high school student in Canada."
Student, Age 18

COLIN ANGUS

2007 NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC
ADVENTURER OF THE YEAR

Adrenaline Junkie? Absolutely.
Daring? You bet.
Risk Taker? Totally.
Stupid? Never.

Join Colin as he revisits his many high risk adventures including rafting the Amazon and the first human-powered circumnavigation of the planet. He credits his achievements & success on planning for risk.
